

Tamboli

s u p a r i

ABOUT US:

The Tamboli are a people of India traditionally associated with the production and distribution of the betel leaf and areca nut. As an individual, our journey started in 1960, as traders of betel leaf in the Panwala community and enriched the tobacco market by 1991 as a merchandise of tobacco products and services to the local market of Baroda. In the segment of Areca nut, we as Tamboli Traders, are providing Split Areca nut in packaging services and facilitating our dealers and end users with multiple varieties of goods and services.

OUR VISION:

We envision a future by fulfilling the massive demand for the best quality Areca nut across the local and global market by doing our research in specified growing coastal regions. Attaining our focus on being trustworthy and supportive to individuals by creating strong relationships beyond the neediness of business.

OUR MISSION:

In a competitive market, as a leading industry, our target is to provide the best quality services to our customers at affordable prices, regardless of speculation in the market conditions and offer the utmost services and availability despite numerous challenges.

CHARACTERISTICS

Areca nut is commonly referred to as a seed of the Areca Palm Tree, which is also known as Areca Catechu. The practice of chewing Areca nut with slaked lime and cured tobacco leaves is commonly referred to as Mava (Faki) in various regions of Gujarat. The preparation combining the areca nut, slaked lime, and betel leaves (Piper betle) is known as a betel quid.
